Want to be a Futurist? Join the Strategic Foresight team and explore the future.

Project Title	Want to be a Futurist? Join the Strategic Foresight team and explore the future.
C, I I I W W V W I	The United States Coast Guard Office of Emerging Policy (DCO-X) seeks an intern to support advancing the use of remote facilitation tools and techniques for strategic foresight efforts in support of USCG's strategic planning process.
Country	United States

Project Description

The Office of Emerging Policy (DCO-X) is home to the USCG's strategic foresight program, Project Evergreen, which is aimed at supporting today's leaders as they prepare the Coast Guard to succeed in a dynamic and uncertain future.

Evergreen workshops use Human Centered Design (HCD), design thinking, foresight tools and techniques to identify strategic challenges and opportunities. The selected intern will join a highly-motivated team of Strategic Analysts as they explore transitioning traditional in-person workshops to a remote environment. Internship tasks may include evaluating applicability of remote collaboration platforms, identifying best practices for conducting remote workshops, applying HCD and foresight tools to a remote environment, and assisting with analysis of workshop outputs.

The ideal candidate will be detail-oriented, comfortable with ambiguity, proficient working in a remote environment, possess strong writing and/or analytical skills, and be curious about learning more about the practice of HCD, design thinking and foresight.

Required Skills or Interests

Infographic design
Marketing
Research
Writing

Additional Information

Learn more about the U.S. Coast Guard at: https://www.uscg.mil/ and the Office of Emerging Policy's Project Evergreen, as featured in the Harvard Business Review - Emerging from the Crisis: https://hbr.org/2020/07/emerging-from-the-crisis

Language Requirements

None